

"The Rabbit's Foot"

Attainable Beauty For Most Women at No Expense

Another Chat With the Model

Again my little professional model friend slipped across the hall and knocked on my studio door at dusk. "I have been rolling," she announced, "today the artist told me I was getting too stout, and although I had hardly noticed it myself, I find that my gowns are becoming snug."

She explained to me the system of rolling, which is guaranteed to reduce the most hopeless of the sisters of obesity.

"I bend and touch the floor to keep myself supple, and then I do stretching to keep my figure from having a chance to slump. Back and forth over the floor for at least twenty minutes, night and morning, I roll."

Another model who lives on the first floor says that her method of retaining her beauty is to eat things which her palate craves. She does not believe in dieting, but she does hold that exercise is the most important thing one can do to keep the figure and face beautiful. "My real beauty rules are, keep busy, keep happy, don't worry."

Perhaps there are more than a few of us in this world who know from experience that keeping the mind pure and happy is a great aid to the expression of the face.

Professional models depend a great deal for their success on their facial expressions. It has been known that artists have engaged a model simply because she had a whimsical smile, or an appealing droop of the eyelash. Although there are not many of us who have been professional models, we all of us are human models, going forth each day before the world, to judge us from our expression and clothes. Let us be thoughtful then about the face we give to the world.

Magpie Colors to the Fore

The Tricorne, the Cape and Silver-Buckled Shoes Necessary to Complete the Season's Tailored Suit

FEMININE FURBELOWS DESPITE SUFFRAGE

NEW YORK, June 13.—If in Paris one sees extreme things that are really not acceptable, it is still true that the recognized French woman of society, whether at home or among her friends, is always gowned in perfect taste. Just now her taste stamps the tailored costume.

The tailored suit has been inspired by feminine grace until it is no longer to be recognized as the tailored suit we used to know. It is the smartest of the smart, and cob-web net and curious lanterns are inter-mingled with conventional flowers faintly outlined with metal thread. Lace flounces of this kind are worn on evening dresses or afternoon gowns; they are, as a rule, arranged in graduated widths, and some of the designs are as original as they are effective.

Irish lace is very little used except for children's dresses, where it still holds sway. The vogue is for embroidered net, and some exquisite summer gowns are covered with flounces and draperies of plain creamy net.

Black velvet belts, girde sashes, short tunics attached to a draped bretelle-like waist of lace-velvet, are worn with tulle and lace-draped liberty, charmeuse and taffeta evening frocks. In the guise of square collars, black velvet is invading the realm of the tailored suits. This touch of velvet is tending toward the velvet note that will be struck with such force when next winter arrives—but from now until then, who knows!

Although pique is not being used so much for white dresses this year, it is used a great deal as a trimming for dresses of much sheerer quality. Waists of organdy have collar and cuffs of pique. Goline, a material that has a striped effect somewhat similar in appearance to pique, with an entirely different finish, however, is also used for collars and cuffs, and for other trimmings on waists and entire dresses. Figure 1 is an example of the use of one of these materials. The dress itself is of cotton crepe, with collars, cuffs and waistcoat-girdle of pique. The double-tunics each have bands of pique around the bottom.

The magpie colors, which are, after all, most becoming to the majority of people are coming again to the fore. Black and white are colors in which one can seldom go far wrong. Checks are good, but it is a season of stripes whether in two or many colors.

In my second illustration is a dress made unusually striking by its development in black and white striped lawn. The bodice has raglan sleeves, with collar and revers of white hem-stitched organdy. The smartly-puffed skirt has an added ruffle, below the panner, of the striped material running the lengthwise of the goods. This mode of checking the long line of stripes is especially adapted to the very tall woman.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Putting wilted vegetables into ice-water will restore their freshness. Baby can open the screen door if a spoon is tacked on the outside of it.

Dandelions should be gathered in the early morning, before the sun has wilted them.

Asparagus on toast with hot cream, well salted, makes a delicious breakfast dish.

Beet tops should be used, roots and all, discarding only the leaves that are defective.

The dandelion is worth cultivating; it is one of the best pot herbs and useful for a salad.

If children are wakeful and restless when put to bed, try giving them a glass of good milk.

It is a good idea to add to the garden year by year two or three new pot herbs and salad plants.

Overcooking always injures the color of greens; they should never be cooked until they become yellow.

Left-over ice cream may be utilized in making cakes. It may take the place of butter, cream or flavoring.

Lettuce should be washed carefully and placed, leaf by leaf, in a stone jar with a cover and put in the ice chest.

The pot in which greens are cooked should never be covered. The confined steam injures the flavor and spoils the color.

A piece of fresh pork baked with the beans is an economy, as the pork makes the meat dish for dinner and the beans are delicious.

If a little powdered sugar and lemon juice are added to dandelions while cooking, the bitterness will be somewhat counteracted.

The housewife should have one pot herb on her table daily. The pot herb is essentially a relish, but it has a distinct value in the diet.

When cooking asparagus in broken pieces, it is a good idea to add the tender tips after the tougher pieces have begun to come tender.

A good furniture polish is made with equal parts of sweet oil, chloroform and alcohol, shaken hard; rubbed on quickly, then polished by rubbing hot.

Spinach should be washed in many waters immediately upon being brought in from the garden or market, and then placed in a cloth and laid on the ice.

CITROLAX! CITROLAX!

First—get the name down pat—then buy it of your druggist. Just the very best thing for constipation, sick headache, sour stomach, lazy liver, sluggish constipated bowels. The pleasantest, surest, nicest laxative you ever used. Tastes good—like lemonade. Acts promptly, without pain or nausea. Gives you the most satisfactory flushing you have ever had. For sale by N. B. Danforth, Market and Second Sts.—Adv.

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVANCE. SPECIAL TO THE EVENING JOURNAL.

EBENEZER, Del., June 13.—Children's Day will be observed in Ebenezer Church on Sunday morning.

George L. Denney is ill. Edward Worrall has been confined to his home suffering with chicken-pox.

Miss Katharine Mousley spent a short time this week with friends near Harmony. Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Whitman and family and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Walker drove to Valley Forge on Sunday. Miss Mary Morrison, of Wilmington, was the recent guest of Misses Lora and Elizabeth Little. The Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Prettyman and son, Robert, spent a few days this week with relatives in Philadelphia.—Several residents of this vicinity attended Pomona Grange, held in Middletown last Thursday.

At Bremen, Ga., W. M. Golden, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, says he found Foley Kidney Pills to be the best remedy for kidney and bladder troubles, also for rheumatism. He says: "Any person having kidney trouble, backache, or rheumatism should be very glad to find such a wonderful remedy." For sale by N. B. Danforth, Market and Second Sts.—Adv.

THE NEW TUNIC SKIRT EASY TO MAKE

By May Mantou

8203 Two-Piece Skirt. 22 to 30 waist.

WITH ONE-PIECE CIRCULAR TUNIC THAT IS PERFORATED FOR SHORTER LENGTH AND ROUND CORNERS, WITH HIGH OR NATURAL WAIST LINE

The very long tunic that flares at the lower edge is among the newest to have appeared. It is worn both for street costumes and for indoor gowns and this skirt can be utilized for different costumes and in different ways. As shown here, it is made from silk and cotton tulle and is just as well adapted to tulle and to charmeuse satin, to broadcloth and gabardine suitings and to the various materials of indoor garments. The skirt is made in two pieces, the tunic in one and, since this tunic can be made shorter, it can be adapted to all figures. A smart and quite different effect from this one can be obtained by making the tunic and the coat or blouse of one material and the skirt of another, as skirt and coat trimmings of black moiré velours, tunic and coat of poplin in green or other color.

For the medium size, the skirt will require 2 1/2 yds. of material 27 or 44, 2 yds. 32 in. wide; the long tunic 3 yds. 27, 1 1/2 yds. 44, 1 1/2 yds. 52 in. wide; the short tunic 2 yds. 27, 1 yd. 44, 3/4 yd. 52 in. wide.

The pattern of the skirt 8203 is cut in sizes from 22 to 30 waist. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

TO INSPECT LEWES CANAL.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING JOURNAL. LEWES, Del., June 13.—It is expected that twenty-five members of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of both Houses in Washington will be at Lewes on Friday and Saturday, June 19 and 20. They will arrive here on Friday noon on the steam pilotboat Philadelphia, which will go to Philadelphia on Thursday night for them. During Friday afternoon and Saturday the visitors will cruise about Delaware Bay and River and will probably land here some time on Saturday afternoon. They will return to Philadelphia on the boat Sunday morning.

Pique Trimmings on a Dress of Crepe Make it Smartly Up-to-date worn with a simple linen blouse, these are worn in the afternoon everywhere. White pique waistcoats, with revers and points that show an evasive basque. Is an attractive method of replacing the blouse.

This is worn with a simple skirt, possibly having a tunic, but always with a very studied cut which does not hide the silhouette. The sleeves are long and button fairly high, while the shoes to be worn with this type of costume are laced or buckled with simple silver buckles.

The handbags are small and in velvet, but no longer in the form of tobacco bags. The umbrellas and practical parasols accompany these costumes; they are in silk of solid colors, usually a smoky gray, with a leather handle having a monogram of brilliants. This is typical of the approved tailor costume. And no matter where the woman is who wears this dress she is among the most elegantly costumed of women, even if it is at a "The Damsel."

A string of enormous pearls—the larger the pearls the more correct—is usually worn with this costume. It is also very smart to wear two pearl rings on the left hand, one black and one white—but what quality of pearls!—while on the right hand is worn a large sapphire or emerald cabochon—likewise marvelous gems.

The hats are small and are no longer pierced by large hatpins; instead, two little jeweled pins, very short, are placed at each side. This is all that is necessary to hold the small toques and the straight cylinder hats, which entirely imprison the head.

The tricorne is an excellent type of hat now in favor. It is very small, and fits close to the head; placed crosswise, it is charming with a dark skirt and cape, with the bretelles crossing on a doublet blouse. The gloves for this costume should be particularly large and without buttons and long; even if the sleeves of the blouse are also long.

The reign of the pleated tunic has invaded the evening. We see charming dance frocks that sway and swing with the rhythm of the dance in the most graceful manner. One such gown had a new long, gathered skirt, two little jeweled pins, in front and high at the back where it flared with a Japanese collar effect. This basque was of citron-colored tulle, and a sash of the same tulle passes high over the right hip and knotting just above the knees at the left of the front, falls almost to the ankle in two ends. The underskirt of this frock was of the tulle, and over it hung the long-pleated tunic of silk voile—a fabric that will have a tremendous vogue this and the coming season.
